135 Aging in Place Coalition

PHOTO PROVIDED

ered legal and financial concerns; Dr. Mary Ann Larkin, an audiologist whom King says "spearheads" the coalition; Margaret Agee, who talked about places for seniors to live that offer all levels of health care; Meghan Clark, who discussed health and hospice care; and Paul Franklin, who provided information on transportation for seniors, by seniors. "It was the most important meeting we have held at the Mount Pleasant Men's Coffee, and we sincerely thank Dr. Larkin and the South Carolina Aging in Place Coalition," King said.
